This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

IN CONVENTION, JUNE 13, 1867.

MANUAL OF THE CONVENTION.

Mr. VAN VALKENBURGH. I offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee on printing be directed to procure the publishing of a Manual for the members of the Convention, containing the names of the delegates, the counties they represent, their post-office address, their occupations, and their respective boarding places in this city; also, a copy of the present Constitution, the rules of the Convention, and such other matter as they may deem expedient.

Mr. President, I offer this resolution from a belief that a Manual of the kind named would be of great value to members of this Convention, not only during their stay here, but when they shall have returned to their homes. I have in my hand, sir, a Manual prepared for the Convention of 1850, which embraces the information sought to be obtained by my resolution, and the autographs of the officers and members of that Convention, and also the autographs of the State officers. I have often found this Manual a great help to me in the past. We become acquainted with each other upon this floor; we may know what counties we respectively represent, but not knowing the particular locality, the post-office address, we cannot communicate with each other. This Manual obviates that difficulty.

Mr. President, I value this Manual highly for other reasons. I value it for the cherished memories it revives of the past—memories of noble men who stood shoulder to shoulder with me upon this floor, day after day, contending for the adoption of controverted principles in the Constitution, some of which were successfully urged, and I trust they will hold a place in all future Constitutions, as monuments of their fidelity and devotion to the right. Some of those men, though much my juniors, have long since paid the debt of nature, and preceded me to the eternal world. I hold, Mr. President, that this strangely maligned Constitution of ours, which has drawn forth so many maledictions from various sources, has still some redeeming features, some salient points, which will stand forth in all the future as oases to keep green the memory of their originators.

I also value this Manual, Mr. President, for its frequent revival of the dear memories of acquaintances made and friendships formed upon this floor with noble men, who battled valiantly in the cause of justice and humanity, and whose devotion to the right will always stand forth in bold relief, beckoning onward the timid and the fearful—who, although then defeated in some of their cherished purposes, still live to see those principles crowned triumphantly in this Convention, and to participate in their triumph, for I have the great pleasure of meeting some of those men once more upon this floor.

My good friend from Wayne, (Mr. SHEARER,) told us a day or two since of the rapid progress of this State; the many improvements made since his first advent to it; how the red man of the forest had faded away before the rapid advance of civilization; how the cultivated fields had taken the place of the dense forest, and the stately mansion supplanted the Indian wigwam. He told us of the appearance of this place at his first visit, how he came here in a lumbering stage coach, over roads almost impassable, and found only a site for a city. I, too, saw Lansing at an early day—in the autumn of 1847. Then a resident of Western New York, I was attracted to this place by the fame of your Capital, located in the wilderness. I also found my way here over roads unspeakably toilsome; and here, where Lansing now stands in all her beauty, I found a few small cottages erected in the forest upon imaginary streets, which had existence only upon paper; and here on this spot, Mr. President, where this Capitol now stands, I found sturdy men digging up the tall forest oaks to make way for the foundations of this structure. At that time—twenty years ago the coming autumn—Lansing was almost an unbroken wilderness. Now, how changed! As by the wand of magic, the forest has been converted into fruitful fields, and the wilderness made to bud and blossom like the rose. Compare for a moment, sir, the Lansing of 1847 with the Lansing of to-day—then a wilderness, the home of the wolf and the panther; now the gem of our State, the seat of civilization, of morality, of religion, of all that is fair and lovely and of good report, of all that renders life desirable, all that conduces to our happiness here and hereafter. Lansing, then a reproach to the legislators who located it here, is now the pride of our fair Peninsula.

Yes, sir, we may well be proud of our State Capital, with her broad, well-graded avenues, her extended sidewalks, her beautiful residences, her tasteful and highly ornamented gardens, her princely store-houses, her numerous places of religious worship, dotting her expanded area as landmarks to guide us to the better land, her talented and devoted clergy, her far-famed and well appointed Female College, an honor to any State, her other literary institutions, her public and private libraries, her courteous and hospitable citizens. Yes, sir, I repeat we may well be proud of the beautiful Capital of our beautiful Peninsula.

Who can tell the future of Lansing? Who can prophesy her status in twenty years to come, with her peerless location, her physical energies, her cultivated intellect, her moral eminence, her indomitable perseverance, in the midst of a peninsula unsurpassed for beauty and fertility in the wide world? Who can tell? Well may we exclaim, in the language of our State motto, "Si quæris peninsulam amœnam circumspice!" Yes! if you wish to see a beautiful peninsula, look around—look to the east and west, to the north and south, and gaze upon as beautiful a scene as can be found under the broad canopy of the heavens. The gentleman from Wayne told us he loved the State of his adoption. Who marvels at it, sir? Who wonders that a man of his genial feelings, with his warm heart, should love this State of ours? I, too, sir, love the State of my adoption. The man who does not love her must be a stoic and an alien. I love her placid lakes, dotting her surface as the stars gem the firmament. I love her grand rivers and her purling streams; I love her majestic forests and her green fields; I love her brave men and her fair women; I encircle them in my arms, I press them to my heart. As I look around upon this Convention, its accomplished and efficient officers, its noble men, the bone and sinew of our State, the brain and intellect of our Peninsula, I am proud, sir, that I am a member of this body, proud that I have a standing upon this floor. It stirs the blood within me. As the field of battle arouses the energies of the old, worn war horse, so this arena stirs my blood and awakens the energies of former days. It makes me young again.

The Convention of 1850 contained some of the best men in our State—men who, like Saul, towered a head and shoulders above their coevals. It contained many good, devoted, patriotic men, whose memories are cherished, a blessing to our State and an honor to our common country. And still, Mr. President, no observing man can fail to see that the mental and moral progress of our State has kept pace fully with its physical advancement. But, Mr. President, I wander. I ask your pardon, sir—I ask pardon of the Convention. I return to the question. The adoption of the resolution can be of little avail to me—the time of my sojourn among you, in all human probability, will be brief. I have already passed the allotted age of man—three score and ten—and, in the language of the Psalmist, "if by reason of strength they reach four score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow, for it is soon cut off and we fly away." My work here is nearly accomplished. I shall meet you no more for the revision of human laws; but I trust, I hope I may meet many of you—yea, all of you—in that Convention where the organic law is perfect, and no human passions or conflicting opinions mar its harmony.

Individually, I expect but little benefit from the adoption of this resolution; but assured, as I am, that it will be a great benefit to the young men, the business men, in this Convention, both in their social and business relations, I have been induced to offer the resolution, and I hope it will be adopted. The expense will be trifling compared with the benefit to be derived. Should it be adopted, I would suggest to the committee having charge of its publication some improvements upon the Manual of 1850—that is, to insert in some part of the Manual a few blank leaves of writing paper, upon which to obtain the autographs of the officers and members of the Convention. This was neglected in 1850, and we were obliged to use such blanks for that purpose as were incidentally left in the Manual.

Mr. WITHEY moved that the resolution and remarks of Mr. VAN VALKENBURGH be published in the Manual;

Which was unanimously adopted.

RULES OF THE CONVENTION.

RULE I.

The President shall take the Chair at the time to which the Convention stands adjourned, and call it to order; and thereupon the roll of the members shall be called by the Secretary.

RULE II.

Upon the appearance of a quorum, the journal of the preceding day shall be read by the Secretary, unless otherwise ordered, and any mistake therein corrected.

RULE III.

After the reading of the journal of the preceding day, the order of business shall be as follows:

1. Presentation of Petitions.
2. Reports of Standing Committees.
3. Reports of Select Committees.
4. Communications from State Officers.
5. Motions and Resolutions.
6. Third reading of Articles.
7. Unfinished Business.
8. Special Orders of the day.
9. General Orders of the day.

Digitized by Google

RULE IV.

The President shall preserve order and decorum, and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Convention.

RULE V.

The President shall vote upon all questions taken by yeas and nays, except on appeals from his own decisions, in which case he shall not vote.

RULE VI.

The President may leave the Chair and appoint a member to preside, but not for a longer time than one day, except by leave of the Convention.

RULE VII.

When the Convention adjourns, the members shall keep their seats until the President announces the adjournment.

RULE VIII.

Every member, previous to his speaking, shall rise from his seat and address himself to the President.

RULE IX.

When two or more members rise at once, the President shall designate the member who is first to speak.

Digitized by Google

RULE X.

No member shall speak more than twice on the same question, nor more than once until every member who chooses to speak shall have spoken. This rule shall not apply to chairmen of committees speaking on matters reported by them.

RULE XI.

Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if required by the President or any member, and shall be stated by the President before debate. All resolutions and motions in writing shall be endorsed by the member introducing the same.

RULE XII.

After a motion has been stated by the President, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Convention. Such motion may be withdrawn at any time before decision or amendment, but may be renewed by any other member.

RULE XIII.

When a question shall be under debate, no motion shall be received but the following, to wit:

1. To adjourn;
2. To lay on the table;
3. For the previous question;
4. To postpone to a day certain;

Digitized by Google

5. To commit;
6. To amend;
7. To postpone indefinitely;

Which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they stand arranged.

RULE XIV.

A motion to adjourn shall always be in order; this, and the motion to lay on the table, shall be decided without debate.

RULE XV.

The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" And if demanded by a majority of the members elect, its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Convention to a direct vote upon amendments, if any are pending, and then upon the main question, which shall be the section or article under consideration, as the Convention may direct.

RULE XVI.

All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, during the pendency of such motion, or after the Convention shall have determined that the main question shall now be put, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

Digitized by Google

RULE XVII.

Petitions, memorials and other papers addressed to the Convention shall be presented by the President or a member in his place, with a brief statement of the contents, and the name of the member presenting the same endorsed thereon.

RULE XVIII.

When the President is putting the question, no member shall walk out of or across the house; nor when a member is speaking, shall any person entertain any private discourse, or pass between him and the Chair.

RULE XIX.

If the question in debate contain several propositions, any member may have the same divided.

RULE XX.

A member called to order by the Chair shall immediately take his seat unless permitted to explain, and the Convention, if appealed to, shall decide the case. If there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to. On an appeal, no member shall speak more than once without leave of the Convention, and when a member is called to order for offensive language there shall be no debate.

RULE XXI.

When the Convention shall have reached the general orders of the day, they shall go into committee of the whole upon such orders, or a particular order designated by a vote of the Convention; and no other business shall be in order until the whole are considered or passed, or the committee rise; and unless a particular subject is ordered up, the committee of the whole shall consider, act upon, or pass the general orders according to the order of their reference. In forming a committee of the whole, the President shall appoint a chairman to preside.

RULE XXII.

Propositions committed to the committee of the whole shall first be read through by the Secretary, and then read and debated by clauses. All amendments shall be entered on a separate paper, and so reported to the Convention by the chairman, standing in his place.

RULE XXIII.

The rules of the Convention shall be observed in committee of the whole, so far as they may be applicable, except that the yeas and nays shall not be called, nor the previous question enforced. The Convention may at any time, by a vote of the majority of the members present, provide for the discharge of the committee of the whole from the further consideration of any subject referred to it, after acting without debate on all amendments pending, and that may be offered.

RULE XXIV.

A journal of the proceedings in committee of the whole shall be kept as in Convention.

RULE XXV.

A motion that the committee rise shall always be in order, and shall be decided without debate; and if decided in the affirmative, the chairman shall report the action of the committee, either upon the article or section or sections had under consideration, as the committee of the whole shall direct.

RULE XXVI.

All questions, whether in committee or in the Convention, shall be put in the order they were moved, except in the case of privileged questions. Where a blank is to be filled, and different sums or times shall be proposed, the question shall be first taken on the largest sum or the longest time.

RULE XXVII.

No motion for reconsideration shall be in order, unless within three days after the decision proposed to be reconsidered took place. A motion for reconsideration being put and lost, (except in case of privileged motions,) shall not be renewed on the same day.

RULE XXVIII.

Any member having voted with the majority may move a reconsideration, and a motion for reconsideration shall be decided by a majority of votes.

RULE XXIX.

All orders, resolutions and motions shall be entered on the journals of the Convention, with the name of the member moving the same.

RULE XXX.

No rule of the Convention shall be suspended, altered or amended, without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

RULE XXXI.

Upon a call of the Convention, the names of the members shall be called by the Secretary, and the absentees noted; but no excuse shall be made until the Convention shall be fully called over; then the absentees shall be called the second time, and if still absent, excuses may be heard, and if no sufficient excuse be made, the absentees may, by order of those present, if there be fifteen members present, be taken into custody wherever found by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

RULE XXXII.

The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Jefferson's Manual shall govern the Convention in all cases to which they are applicable, and when they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of this Convention.

RULE XXXIII

The yeas and nays shall be taken upon any question, whenever demanded by ten members, and when so demanded on any question every member within the bar shall vote for or aginst the same, unless the Convention shall excuse him.

RULE XXXIV.

A majority of the members elected shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may adjourn from day to day.

RULE XXXV.

Every article shall receive three several readings previous to its being passed, and the second and third readings shall be on different days, and the third reading shall be on a day subsequent to that in which it has passed a committee of the whole, unless the Convention, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present, shall otherwise direct; and no article shall be declared adopted without the votes of a majority of all the members elect.

RULE XXXVI.

No article shall be committed or amended until it has been twice read in whole or by its title, as the Convention shall direct; and every article reported upon by a committee shall be referred to the committee of the whole, placed on the general order, and printed.

RULE XXXVII.

When an article shall have reached the order of third reading, it shall be referred to the Committee on Arrangement and Phraseology, for arrangement, correction and engrossment, before it shall be placed upon its final passage.

RULE XXXVIII.

The several articles, after their final passage, shall be referred to the Committee on Arrangement and Phraseology, for numerical arrangement in their proper order, and shall be reported back to the Convention for its final action upon the Constitution as an entirety.
